Consultation on Free Bus Travel

Older and Disabled Persons Scheme

The Scottish Government is consulting on a number of options to ensure the longer-term sustainability of the concessionary travel scheme. Why? Around 70,000 Scots turn age 60 each year. The scheme currently costs around £192m a year and is set to rise. We remain committed to providing free bus travel to those who need it most and want to know what you think.

Free bus travel for Modern Apprentices aged 16 - 20

The Scottish Government is proposing free bus travel for young modern apprentices aged 16 – 20. Modern Apprenticeships provide young people with the opportunity to learn a trade or set of skills on which to build a career. We believe that helping with transport costs will make the Modern Apprenticeship route more attractive to young people.
